MEDICAL SERVICES SCHEDULING

Summary: The paper presents an example of medical services modeling for the University of Computer Sciences and Skills Rehabilitation and Cosmetology Center in Lodz into a ontology in OWL language. Such representation allows automatic scheduling of these services by specialized tools. Planning is carried out in two phases, the first of them is planning in types (abstract), the second phase selects specific instances of services fulfilling abstract plan (concrete planning).